How to use this guide

Events are listed in date and time order. On the left you will find the Faculty/Department responsible for organising the event. On the right we list the event title, date and time, venue, speaker(s) and a short description if available.

Booking

The events are free to attend and open to all members of the university unless otherwise stated. Some events have limited capacity and advance booking is advisable you will find booking details where applicable. The event information in this guide was correct at the time of going to press, but may be subject to change. Please check the online version of the almanac found at www.wlv.ac.uk/almanac and the event webpages where available.

On the rare occasion that an event is rescheduled or cancelled, changes to a booking made via Eventbrite will be communicated through Eventbrite.

The Almanac is compiled and designed by:

Public Lecture

Public Lecture at Stafford: 'A sense of place - the psycho-geography of getting from A to B.'

Tuesday 3rd September 2019, 18:00 – 20:00,

Speaker: Rob Francis

University of Wolverhampton in Stafford, 2A Staffordshire Place, Tipping Street, Stafford, ST16 2LP.

How do different places make us feel and behave? Are you an urban wanderer? Find out how psycho-geography helps our sense of place.

Psychogeography gained popularity in the 1990s when artists, writers and filmmakers such as Iain Sinclair and Patrick Keiller began using the idea to create works based on exploring locations by walking.

Lecturer Rob Francis will suggest playful and inventive ways of navigating the urban environment in order to examine its architecture and spaces.

	Time and Venue TBC.
	Contact Karl Royle K.royle@wlv.ac.uk for further information.

I cannot teach anybody anything I can only design an environment in which they can learn. Carl Rogers (1969)

“Up until now, some of us actually thought that we created and organized the systems in which we work. But should it turn out that natural system...are truly self-organizing, much of that effort was wasted.” Harrison Owen (1992)

This is a special interest group for the propagation of PBL/Design/Project and any other type of emancipatory pedagogy you can think of.

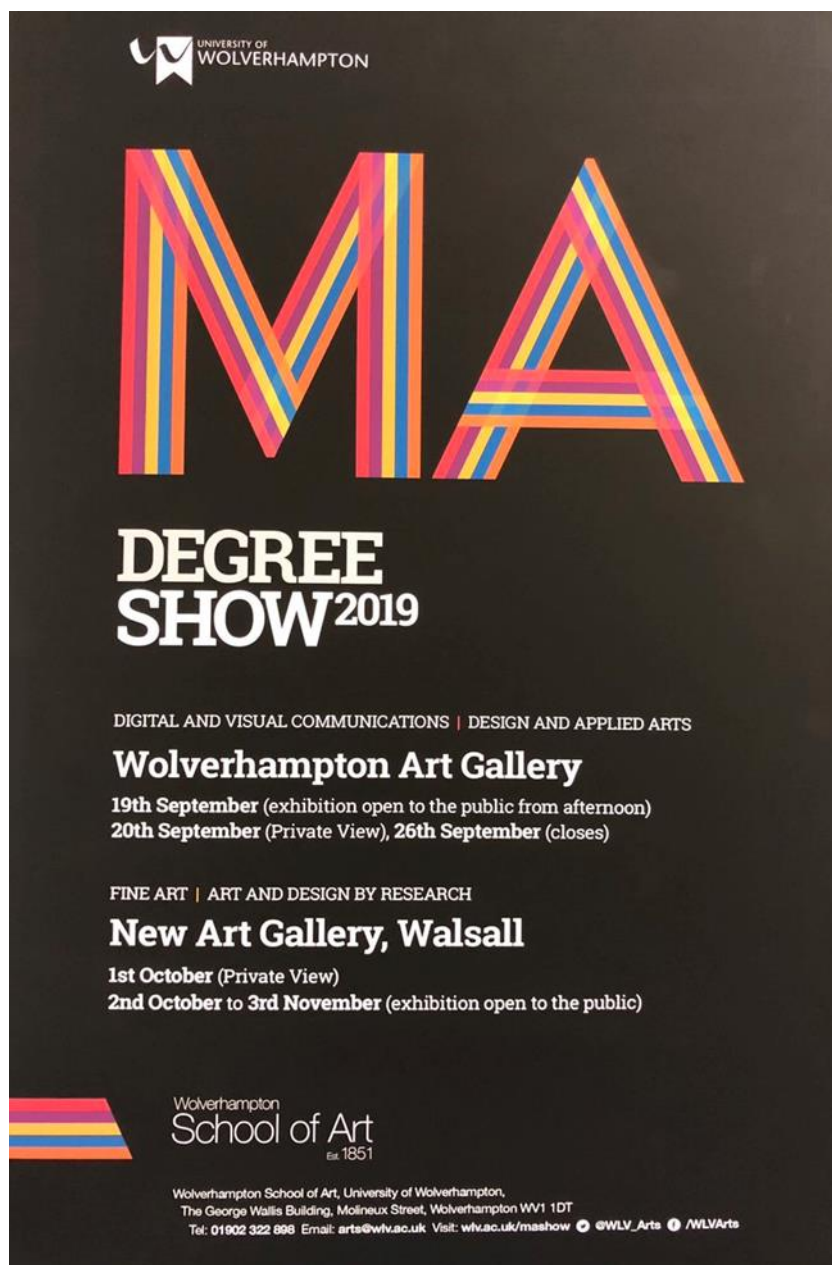

We meet once a month for talking, curriculum design, doing things and anything else you would like to talk about. Occasionally we will have speakers and we will also set the agenda collaboratively.

FASS History	Public Lecture: ‘Cornelius Ryan : A Bridge Too Far and the Shaping of History ’
	Wednesday 18 th September 2019, 18:30 – 20:00
	University Centre Telford, Level 3 Southwater, Southwater Square, Telford, TF3 4JG.
	Speaker:- Professor John Buckley , Professor of Military History, University of Wolverhampton.

Cornelius Ryan’s book A Bridge Too Far about the Allied airborne landings in the Netherlands in September 1944, and the Richard Attenborough directed film of the same name, have over the last forty years significantly altered and distorted our understanding of this crucial action of the closing months of the Second World War.

Professor John Buckley from the University of Wolverhampton will look at the way in which the book and film have shaped our views on Operation Market Garden, the failed attempt by the Allies to use airborne troops to seize bridges over the Rhine in September 1944. Places are free but must be pre-booked. This lecture is suitable for ages 16 upwards.

Tickets by Eventbrite: <http://UCTelford.eventbrite.com> or for more information please ring 01952 277777 or email enquiries@uctelford.co.uk.

CREC Learning Circle – External Event

Tuesday 24th September 2019, 16:30 – 18:00.

CREC Learning Circle, Centre for Research in Early Childhood, St Thomas Children’s Centre, Bell Barn Road, Attwood Green, Birmingham, B15 2AF.

For more information email: Helen Lyndon: h.lyndon@crec.co.uk

The CREC learning circle is a ‘community of practice’ (Wenger 2002). Communities of practice are groups of people who share a concern or a passion for something they do, and learn how to do it better by interacting regularly.

The CREC Learning Circle has met regularly since 2003 for presentations or discussions on early childhood issues, and includes students, policy makers, local authority leaders and visiting academics.

The meetings usually take place in CREC once a month, 4.30-6.00pm and are free, supportive and open to all with an interest in early childhood studies. The meeting usually begins with an agreed input from a participant and is followed by a discussion.

'Send Her Victorious, Happy and Glorious: looking forward to the 2020 Olympic Games, by looking back at Elizabeth II role in promoting the Olympic Movement'

Wednesday 25th September 2019, 17:00 – 19:00

University of Wolverhampton, Walsall Campus, Gorway Road, Walsall.

Professor Jean Williams, Professor of Sport, University of Wolverhampton.

There have been high profile ways in which politicians and heads of state have used the Olympic Games for propaganda purposes during the last 125 years, perhaps the longest running and most overlooked use of Olympism has been the way in which Elizabeth II has used the games to promote the House of Windsor and her own role as head of state, in a way that makes her a relatable figure.

The Queen has embraced Olympic spectacle in ways that no monarch before had, little wonder then, this presentation argues, that it was her daughter, the Princess Royal who became the first of this family to become an Olympic competitor and a member of the IOC, or that her granddaughter Zara Tindall, would also follow suit. It is perhaps also not surprising that the Olympic Games provide the monarchy with the opportunity for moments of national communion and as such, a rich vein of connection with the viewing public.

Jean Williams has written extensively on the history of the Olympic Games, and on the history and culture of sport. Jean’s monograph on Britain’s Women Olympians, called Send Her Victorious is due for completion in the next year.

FASS CTTR

Language, Power and Society Book Launch and First CTTR Research Group Meeting 2019

Friday 27th September 2019.

Book Launch with Dr Lotika Singha (13:00 – 14:00) open to public.

Questions about this event should be addressed to Prof Dr Meena Dhanda (M.Dhanda@wlv.ac.uk)

All are welcome to the book launch hosted by the Language, Power and Society Research Group, Centre for Transnational and Transcultural Research (CTTR).

Lotika Singha, 'Work, Labour and Cleaning: The Social Contexts of Outsourcing Housework' Bristol University Press, 2019)

Abstract: Cleaning lies at the heart of the social inequalities that underpin responsibilities for care work in both domestic and public spaces. This analytical approach starts from a particular varifocal diasporic location that takes into account similarities and differences between and within two social contexts in the UK and India. The book shows how contemporary classed and casteised understandings of work shape experiences of paid domestic cleaning as either work (using mental and manual skills) or as labour (usually defined as unskilled, 'natural' women's work).

A reading and brief talk about the wider implications of this novel approach to work will be followed by a Q&A session.

About the Author: Dr Lotika Singha has recently joined the Faculty of Arts as an Honorary Research Fellow. Her research interests centre on social inequalities in everyday life and cross-cultural theories across various population groups.

Book for book launch via Eventbrite at: <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/cttr-language-power-and-society-research-group-book-launch-tickets-68971520675>

The book launch is followed by an LPS research group meeting in the Arena Theatre Seminar Room at 2pm which will be for members only. It will include a presentation by our new PhD student Esther Chinomnso Iwuchukwu.

Public Lecture

Public Lecture at Stafford: Polycystic Kidney Disease in Children

Thursday 10th October 2019, 18:00 – 20:00

University of Wolverhampton in Stafford, 2A Staffordshire Place, Tipping Street, Stafford, ST16 2LP.

Speaker: Dr Paraskevi Goggolidou, Reader in Molecular Genetics, University of Wolverhampton.

Dr Paraskevi (Evi) Goggolidou, Reader in Molecular Genetics, obtained her BSc Hons in Molecular Genetics from King's College London. After securing a highly competitive Medical Research Council (MRC) PhD studentship she studied with the prestigious Weatherall Institute of Molecular Medicine, on the regulation of the mouse alpha globin cluster. This was followed by a post-doctoral career development fellowship at MRC Harwell.

Her subsequent independent positions in academia focus on research to understand the genetic mechanisms that underlie rare diseases, with the ultimate aim of impacting on disease prognosis and finding pharmacological treatments for them.

In this lecture Evi explains her research into identifying novel treatments that will circumvent the need for kidney transplants in childhood.

Part 1: Formulating your Research Methodology

"What's your methodological approach?", "Where's the methodology explained?", "Describe your methodology in a couple of sentences..." These questions can strike fear into the heart of any doctoral researcher - but its' most probably the first thing that will be asked at your Viva Voce. Part one of our symposium will discuss how you can develop or refine your research methodology, how to explain what it is and where this should go in the thesis, and how to use the methodology to structure your thesis.

Part 2: The importance of establishing an online presence for Doctoral Researchers

You might be conducting path-breaking research, but who apart from your supervisors is aware? Your time as a doctoral researcher offers a unique opportunity to establish yourself, and your work, through online platforms. This can help to disseminate your work, make useful connections with other researchers around the world, add nuance and timeliness to your research, garner invites to conferences and events, and significantly enhance your career prospects. Part two of our symposium will look at how to go about doing this, including a "beginners" demonstration in how to use WordPress.

Masterclass: Talk on Gendered Talk

Thursday 31st October 2019, 12:00 – 13:00.

University of Wolverhampton, City Campus, room tbc.

Josiane Boutonnet, Senior Lecturer, School of Humanities, University of Wolverhampton.

In a recent broadcast on Radio 4 the claim was made that women apologise more often than men, and that this makes them less powerful and authoritative (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/b060brht>).

Stereotypes about gender differences in language use abound, many of those dating back to early 70s research in Linguistics. Do these stereotypes reflect the world we currently live in or are they outdated? Are women given advice more often about the way they (should) speak than men, and does it matter? Has the #metoo movement and the world of social media unleashed new forms of sexism and is this reflected in the way language is used?

Josiane Boutonnet proposes to look at the evidence for gender differences in language use and what the implications are for the various roles men and women occupy in the modern world, and the new forms of communication people have available to them.

'Owning Your Own Narrative'

Thursday 31st October 2019, 15:00 – 16:00,

Chancellor's Hall, University of Wolverhampton, City Campus.

Sajeela Kershi, Comedian and Writer.

Award-winning comedian and writer Sajeela Kershi shares personal anecdotes of the obstacles faced on her fascinating journey from her arrival as an immigrant, to overcoming the trials and tribulations facing an intersectional woman.

Stories of an inspirational woman who has overcome the odds are captured in this inspiring and funny performance, a positive and entertaining antidote to the negative rhetoric of our times.

With the rise of the far right, the normalization of casual abuse, and the demonization of the 'other', how can young people of colour ride the storm to succeed?

The performance will conclude with a Q&A session aimed at opening up a discussion on hopes, fears, and obstacles facing new graduates and how best to overcome them.

	Wednesday 13 th November 2019, 12:00 – 13:00.

	Thomas Webber, Wolverhampton Law School

From dialogue to subsidiarity and now to cooperation, different periods in the life of the European Convention on Human Rights system are categorised often by value laden terms.

This paper attempts to give something of a short narrative inquiry into the antagonistic relationship the Court of Human Rights in Strasbourg has with the member States by looking at a select grouping of events in the Convention's relatively recent history including the introduction of the pilot judgments to the recently created advisory opinion procedure.

In doing so this paper presents something of a cautionary note to subscribers to this newly fashionable, value-laden term of cooperation.

FASS Inaugural Professorial Lecture	Socially Engaged Philosophy: Facing Prejudice, Privilege and Hierarchy
	Wednesday 19 th February 2020, 5:30pm
	Venue TBC
	Professor Meena Dhanda, Professor of Philosophy and Cultural Politics

Philosophy taken as the activity of clarification, elaboration or invention of concepts takes place in the context of problem solving. To intervene in the ‘real’ world of people we must articulate what it means to face prejudice and to build solidarities of resistance.

The problem is entrenched hypocrisy: deep-seated prejudices are passed over as benign matters of identity and cultural practices attuned to existing hierarchies continually renew privileges and prejudices. Can engaged philosophical thinking make a difference to this recurring social malady?

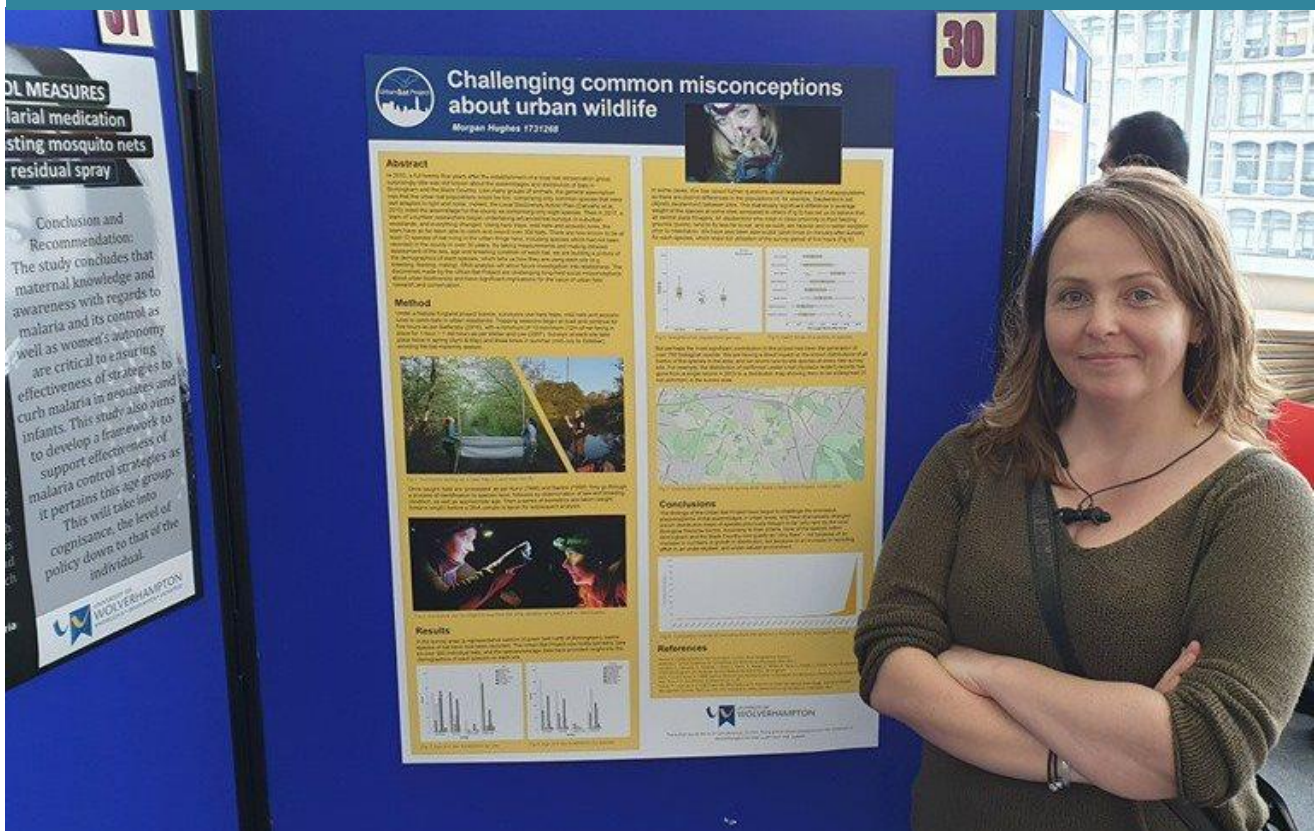

What is the hope that philosophy can offer?

Wednesday 13th May 2020, 2pm (Venue TBC)

Stuart Connor, Reader in Learning Futures, University of Wolverhampton.

Contact Amy Welham (A.Welham@wlv.ac.uk) for further information.

It is one thing to imagine a particular future, it is quite another to realise one. This seminar discusses the range of positions available for understanding people's capacity to act and the different means by which change can be achieved.

Particular attention is paid to how an engagement with futures studies can be used to explore, reveal and rehearse assumptions about the strategies and practices that could and should be used to shape and influence the futures of learning.

Annual Research Conference (ARC) 2020 and Researchers' Week Events

Monday 15 – Tuesday 16 June 2020 ARC

Wednesday 17 – Friday 19th June Researchers' Events

University of Wolverhampton Annual Research Conference (ARC)

This is the only conference for all research staff, research students and staff who support research, to showcase research, build networks, participate, and connect with staff and students from across the University. The two days are split as follows:

- Day 1 - research presentations
- Day 2 - research presentations and poster competition

This is a great opportunity to showcase your project in a supportive academic environment and receive feedback to inform the development of your research.

The Research Student Poster Competition and Doctoral Depictions Photo Competition will also be back next year and details will be sent out early in 2020.

Find out more about ARC at www.wlv.ac.uk/arc

Researchers' Week Events

Following on from ARC the Doctoral College organise an extended series of training and development workshops across the rest of the week. More details will be made available in the updated Semester Two Almanac.

About the Researcher Development Framework (RDF)

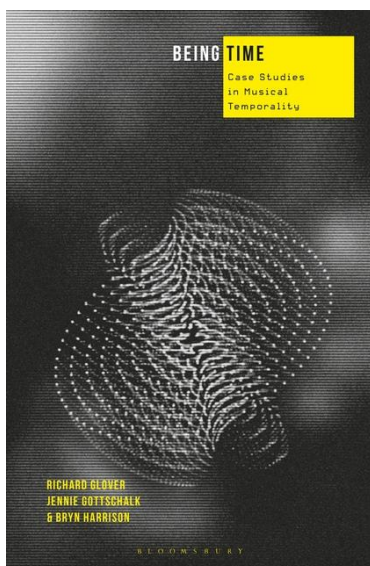

The Researcher Development Statement (RDS) sets out the knowledge, behaviours and attributes of effective and highly skilled researchers appropriate for a wide range of careers. The RDS is for policy makers and research organisations which provide personal, professional and career development for researchers in higher education. The Researcher Development Statement is derived from the Researcher Development Framework (RDF), a major new approach to researcher development, which aims to enhance our capacity to build the UK workforce, develop world-class researchers and build our research base.

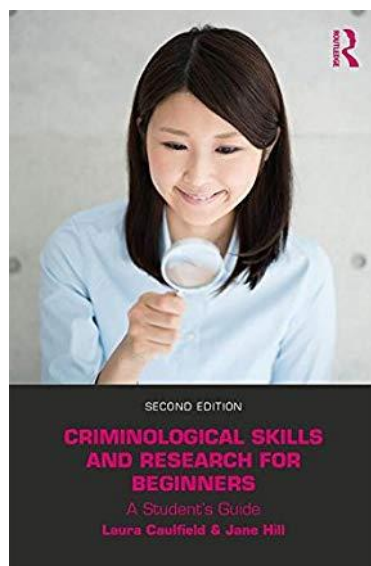

The University of Wolverhampton subscribes to the Vitae Research Development Framework. The RDF is structured in four domains encompassing the knowledge, intellectual abilities, techniques and professional standards to do research, as well as the personal qualities, knowledge and skills to work with others and ensure the wider impact of research. Within each of the domains are three sub-domains and associated descriptors, which describe different aspects of being a researcher.

For more information on the Researcher Development Framework and associated Statement go to www.vitae.ac.uk/rdf
